

SNAPSHOTS: RELAY FOR LIFE

Volunteers let their feet do the fundraising work at this year's Relay for Life of Claremont/La Verne.

For 24 hours, teams walked the track at the University of La Verne raising money for the American Cancer Society. Some 478 walkers helped raise more than $44,000, according to the online donation tracker. More money might be coming in, the website said.

Find future events in the region at relayforlife.org.

Emi Tanaka, 4, walks a lap along the track with her father Rene Tanaka during the Relay for Life of Claremont.

PHOTOS: MICHELLE MENES, CONTRIBUTING PHOTOGRAPHER

Cancer survivors take the first lap around the track as other participants cheer them on during the Relay for Life of Claremont at the University of La Verne on May 3. Hundreds of walkers at the event raised more than $44,000.

Nusha Shishegar, dressed as Leo the Leopard, dances with Jamie Fium during the opening ceremony.

Luminarias line the track during the event.

Cancer survivors take the first lap around the track.

Robert Earhart, associate vice president of University Advancement, at the Relay for Life opening ceremony.

Cindy Cary pauses to take photos of some of the luminarias during the the Relay for Life of Claremont on May 3.

Event chairman John Gilmore, left, and Claremont Mayor Joe Lyons speak during the opening ceremony.

Members of team Cray Cray 4 the Cure walk with their banner displayed during the event.